MANORISMS

Presented by The Class of 1963

Livingston Manor Central School

Livingston Manor, New York

In presenting to you this edition of Manorisms, we have tried to leave you a souvenir of the significant events in our life here at Livingston Manor Central School.

We hope it will revive many memories of the past and be a source of renewed pleasure in the future.

The Editors,

Janet M. Smith

Linda M. Weigand

Dedication

We, the Class of 1963, dedicate this edition of "Manorisms" with much respect and affection to our good friends, Mr. and Mrs. Willard Brown.

To Miss Elinor Decker, who has given so unselfishly of her time and effort as our class advisor and personal friend, we express our deep appreciation. We are grateful for her many acts of kindness and thoughtfulness and for her active interest in our school life and student advancement. With our thanks go our best wishes for good health and happiness.

Dear Class of 1963:

As your last year of high school draws to a close, you are ending a period of life in which you have been sheltered from various forces and influences which your homes and school have felt might have been harmful.

During this time your education and training have been designed to prepare you for independent, responsible living--because now you will be very much on your own.

I hope your school has fulfilled its role of teaching and that you have done your part in learning how to be an asset to yourself and your community--wherever you may be.

My personal good wishes go with each and every one of you.

Sincerely,

Russell W. Ludlum

Robert Davis leaves his book, Accounting - My Way, to Mr. Welter.
Wilberta Tuttle bequeaths her familiar cackle to Lois Loughrey.
To Andy Taggard, Stephen Baldwin offers his shaving equipment.
Frank McGreevy leaves, to the bitter disappointment of the L.M.C.S. female population.
Joyce Clayton bequeaths her sunny disposition to Jean Jones.
Jack Sliter leaves his many loves to whoever can find them.
Thomas Sprague hands down his auto problems to Dennis Cumiskey.
Janet Smith leaves "Pokey" and Dennis alone.
Paul Seeley bequeaths his well-kept car to David Allen.
To Mia Weiner, Joan Tyler offers her hair styling book.
Richard Welch donates some of his height and athletic ability to Wilfredo.
To Michael Schwartz, Janice Bouton leaves her ability to control her temper.
Frances Bagley bequeaths her skirts to Denise Nevin.
Fred Koons offers to Jerry Ackerley his quiet, unassuming manner and efficiency.
Thomas Vick and Judy Clapper leave their Twist trophy and fondness for dancing to Kay Fries and Robert Eugeni.
James Denman leaves his good study habits to Beverly Brown.
Cheryle Wilbur bequeaths her key to the cooky jar to Sharon Roberts.
Ronald Boone leaves for Sadie's.
Linda Weigand relinquishes her favorite spot in Mrs. Will's office to Barbara Loeb.
To Edwin Estabrook, Richard McKune leaves his ability to appear innocent in critical situations.
Leonard Welch transfers his morbid sense of humor to William Krupp.
Dorothy Kuttner leaves her favorite song, "Love 'Em and Leave 'Em," to Pat Wierzbowski.
Barbara Baker transfers her gift of gab to Betty Fennikoh.
Jean Loughrey leaves the alto section in choir to Alice Diescher.
To Marjorie Tuttle, Joseph Dayton leaves his frank and unsolicited opinions.
Gary Rose wills his book, "1001 Ways to Make Money without Working," to Stanley Naumovitz.
Nancy Rolletschek bequeaths her duffle bag with all its equipment to any baby sitter who can carry it.
Joseph Hauptfleisch transfers his poetic ability to at least one person in each class.
Estelle Weiner leaves her "purse" to the office, to be used as a receptacle for lost and found articles.

Class Prophecy

What do the seniors plan to be?
Read these lines and you shall see.

Linda Weigand, our ice queen dear,
Someday will be "best dressed of the year."

Janet Smith, our other queen,
Will be a teacher, for that's her dream.

Gary Rose will most likely be
A man who enjoys hoarding money.

To Jim Denman, sports will bring
A coveted place as All-American--2nd string!

Wilberta Tuttle - wait, call a tailor!
'Cause she's going to marry a handsome sailor.

Judy Clapper will go quite far
As a ten times-divorced movie star.

Nancy Rolletschek, some hair will twist
As Judy Clapper's hair stylist.

John Sliter, a philosopher is going to be;
He'll disprove Freudian philosophy.

Thomas Vick will be preparing many a feast
In his own restaurant - biggest in the East.

Jean Loughrey will memorize a book
To get a position as Vick's head cook.

Manager at Young's Gap, Richard McKune will be;
That is, when he's not in Washington, D. C.

Tom Sprague will own a still in "Frog Hollow,"
Which will turn out "stuff" that's hard to swallow!

Leonard Welch, a dapper southern man,
Will be chief mortician for the Klu Klux Klan.

Barbara Baker, with her eyes on the purse,
Will be a baby-sitting nurse.

Estelle Weiner will study disease
And make men scientists feel weak in the knees.

Ronald Boone, with his gift of speech,
Will teach phonetics to all he can reach.

Joe Dayton will spend his life in a lab,
But behind the scenes he'll just gab and gab.

Frances Bagley will serve humanity
For nursing will be her specialty.

Joyce Clayton, always in a hurry,
Will be famous for her Irish fury.

Robert Davis cannot wait
To work his way up - down at the "Cape."

Rich Welch will prove that he's been spoofed,
That smoking's not harmful, with himself as proof.

Dorothy Kuttner, Welch's secretary will be,
You know, writing letters and sitting on his knee.

Janice Bouton with her love for life
Will end up being a loving wife.

Singing and politicking will be Steve Baldwin's line,
And at both - to be sure - he'll do real fine.

Frank McGreevy will be quite soon
A teenage idol who'll make 'em all swoon.

Cheryle Wilbur, do not fear,
Will someday be "Mother of the Year."

Joan Tyler, who makes those googly eyes,
Is sure to attract those Navy guys.

Paul Seely will head the water supply
Of New York State and areas nearby.

Fred Koons, his goal the skies,
Will one day win the Nobel Prize.

Joseph Hauptfleisch will surely be Still writing his famous poetry.

Class History

It was a rather timid group of freshmen that found themselves in L.M.C.S. on a misty September morning in 1959. After all, this was their first year as part of the high school. Just imagine, in four years--Washington! But those four short years seemed then like an eternity to those new, inexperienced freshmen.

After renewing acquaintances and exchanging bits of news with friends, they hurried on to find out who their homeroom teachers would be. The rumor that had been circulating around that summer proved to be true. There was a new teacher, and his name was Mr. Brown. More important, however, Mr. Brown happened to be one of the homeroom teachers; the other, the class advisor, was Miss Decker.

The officers of this new addition to L.M.C.S. history were: President - Richard Welch; Vice-President - Frederick Koons; Secretary - Rena Turk; Treasurer - Joseph Hauptfleisch; Student Council - Dean Fuller and James Denman. In the years that were to follow, only once would the services of the Vice-President be needed.

What was accomplished this first year? The class motto, class flowers, and class colors were chosen: the motto, "Excelsior," the same as that of our great state; the flowers, red and white roses; the colors, red and white. The class decided against having a play. The dues for the next three years were established, and the officers for the sophomore year were elected. They were: President, Richard Welch; Vice-President, Joseph Hauptfleisch; Secretary, Dorothy Kuttner; Treasurer, Robert Davis; Student Council, Janet Smith and James Denman. The class picnic was held at O.L.L. Camp. The water was like ice, but that did not stop some of the hearty members of the Class of '63.

The sophomore year came hurrying along. Those inexperienced freshmen of a year ago weren't inexperienced anymore. This year proved to hold many challenges for the class, challenges which were met with determination and drive. The sophomores put on one of the most successful record hops in the school's illustrious history. The "Beatnik Blast" blasted the school into the realization that here was a class with originality. The gym was colorfully decorated with our "modern art" and posters of "way out poetry." Livingston Manor "Beatniks" packed into the gym, and everyone had a "real cool" time. Leonard Welch and Barbara Baker, both sophomores, won the prize for best-dressed beatniks. The "Blast" was a huge social and financial success. The class also put on a one-act play, "Keep Your Halo Straight." Who can ever forget Chan Schriber in the part of the "Conscience"?

The class entered competition in the new annual Ice Carnival and won second prize for its snow sculpture of Porky Pig.

Again, class officers for the coming year were elected before the summer recess. All officers remained the same except for the Vice-Presidency to which Fred Koons was elected. The class planned to go again to O.L.L. for its picnic but ended up at Camp Acadia. The juniors were also there. At first the usual class rivalries prevailed, but after awhile when most of the students were tired of swimming, football, and baseball, many of the boys settled down for a good old game of poker. Needless to say, for some the day was a financial success. Everyone went home happy and tired.

Summer vacation came and went all too swiftly for most of the gang. Before they realized it, school was once more in session. This was the "big year" as far as money making was concerned. Since satisfactory counterfeit money was yet to be printed, the class settled down to the hard work ahead. The Sadie Hawkins Dance was its first concern. Where do we get the hay? Are there enough trucks? Think it's going to rain? were a few of the questions that faced the juniors. Everything turned out for the best, however, and the trucks were packed to overflowing. To make the night a bit more exciting, one of the trucks became lost. The dance was a success, thanks to the fine playing of Dave Collins' Band.

What was next on the agenda? Oh, no! the class play, the Ice Carnival, and the Prom!

A farce-comedy in three acts, Let Me Out of Here, was chosen as the class play, and a farce it was! For many long weeks rehearsals continued. Finally the big day came, and - well - well, the people laughed. Everyone laughed including the performers! Steve Baldwin left his trousers on stage and had to make a special entrance to get them; Gary Rose caught his clothes on a nail in the stage set; Janet Smith brought the phone down so hard that it broke; Dick McKune made an entrance with his hat on backwards. The biggest laugh of all came when Dick lost his skirt, which was part of the play, and everyone, performers and audience, laughed without restraint. Was it a success? People laughed! You be the judge.

At the Ice Carnival, we again won second prize for our snow sculpture of Abraham Lincoln. Linda Weigand was the Ice Queen, and her princesses were Barbara Baker, Dorothy Kuttner, Janet Smith and Estelle Weiner.

Shortly after the Ice Carnival, the new Honor Society members were inducted. They were Richard McKune, James Denman, Frederick Koons, Joseph Dayton, Linda Weigand, and Barbara Baker.

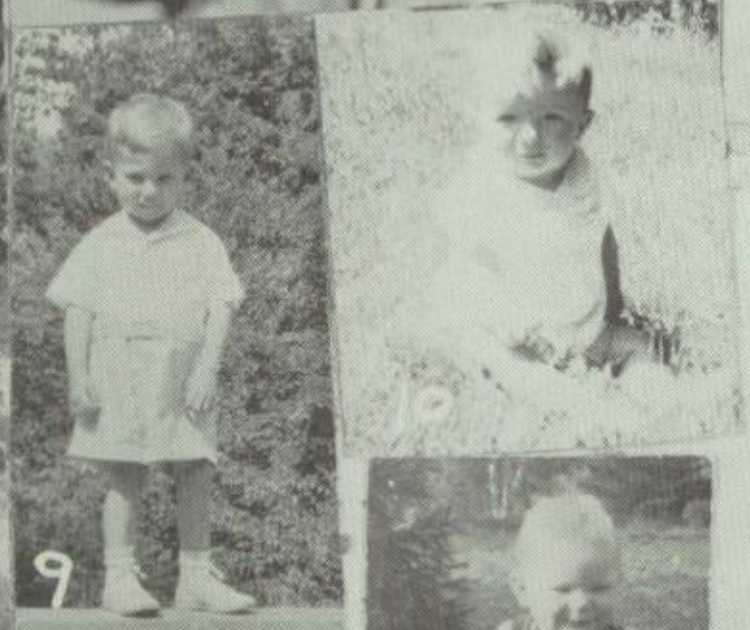
The "really big thing" was next, the Prom. The theme for the prom was Hawaiian Sunset, and the theme song "Stranger on the Shore." The Prom required as much work as did the play. When the long-anticipated night arrived, many juniors sighed with relief. The king and queen were Richard Welch and Janet Smith. The attendants were Linda Weigand, James Denman, Estelle Weiner, and Thomas Vick. With the Prom over, the class seemed to be without any problems, but already, many were talking about next year's Washington trip. The last order of business for the year was the election of next year's officers. Only the presidency and vice-presidency changed. Richard McKune was elected President and Joseph Hauptfleisch, Vice-President. Our representative to Boys' State was Richard McKune. There were no class picnics since a new school rule abolished them. There was, however, a fine party at Shandelee Lake.

Again a summer of swimming, camping, working, and "other things" passed swiftly by. Now the Class of '63 was on the top. After a few weeks of drifting around in the clouds, the seniors came back to earth and decided they wanted more money and so put on a "Beatnik Blast, Part II." The "Blast, Part II" was more like a "pop"! Everyone was satisfied, however, for now Washington loomed ahead--Washington with its government buildings, The Capitol, The White House; Washington with its cultural buildings, the Library of Congress and the "Central Theater." The trip to Washington was an inspiration, an education, and fun! Those seniors who were soon to be out in the world and taking part in its history will never forget their visit to the nation's capital.

Does the story end here? No, indeed! What about the yearbook? The yearbook? Oh, yes, almost forgot the yearbook! What did the yearbook mean to the seniors? Work! Deadlines! Evening sessions in Room 201.

Just when they were about to "get the ball rollin'," Miss Decker, the class advisor, was taken ill and entered the hospital. To the rescue came Mrs. Smith, Mr. Welter, and Mr. Avery, our adopted advisors. Work proceeded slowly but surely, and in the end the yearbook was finished.

Our next big event is graduation. After that we shall go into the world willing to face and overcome all obstacles before us, but we shall never forget the companionship we shared as members of the Class of '63.



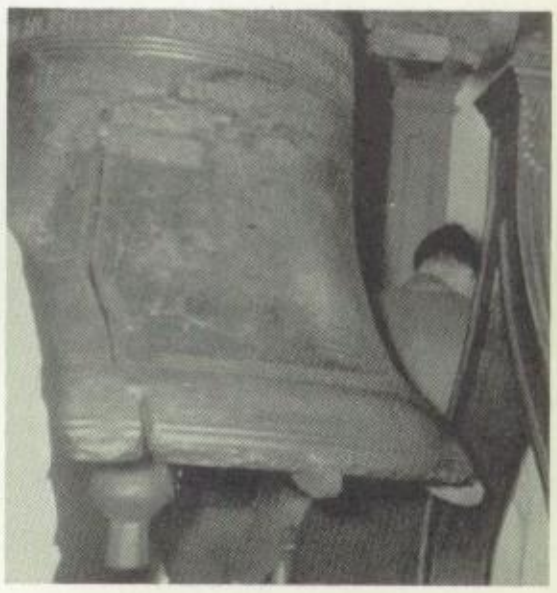
Washington Trip

Livingston Manor, New York — October 24, 1962 — 2:30 A.M.

"Psstt, are you awake?"
"Yeah, are you?"
"What time is it?"
Yawn - "2:30."
"You're kidding."
"2:35 if you want to be exact!"
"Go back to sleep."
30 minutes later
"I can't."
"Neither can I."
"Well, let's try."
4:30 A.M.
"Kids, get up . . . Kids! Get up! . . . It's five o'clock!!"
(Together) "Really"
"No, but get up anyway; breakfast is ready."
"We're up."
4:50 A.M.
"Hurry, our bus is at the school."
"I'm hurrying already."
4:55 A.M.
"'Lo, everyone! Any seats left?"
"Oh, no, all the way to the back. See, we should have gotten up at 2:30!"
"Hey, it's a Shortline! Reclining seats! Here comes the hot cocoa, compliments of the Robin Hood."
"We're off! No, I guess we aren't; here come Joe and Linda. Now we're off. Boy am I hungry!"
"You just ate."
"I know, but I'm hungry again."
"Oh, go to sleep."
"Why?"
"Because I am."
"Oh!"

Scranton, Pennsylvania — 8:00 A.M.

"Breakfast, at last! I thought we'd be in Washington by now."
"Well, we aren't."
"No kidding!"
8:30 A.M.
"All aboard." Welcome, Bob, You're not going to give us a hard time, are you? Good, we'll remember you for this. How much do you want? Hey, gang, look at the sunrise . . . great, isn't it?"



Philadelphia, Pennsylvania — 12:30 P.M.

"Hotel Sheraton! Everybody out for lunch."
"Oh, boy, what's on the menu?"
"Food!"
"Hey, Bertie, what happened to your spoon?"
1:30 P.M.
"Jack, who put the crack in the Liberty Bell?"
"Don't look at me!"
4:00 P.M.
Annapolis, Maryland

"O.K., girls, time to leave. Annapolis needs all their cadets, so stop thinking about taking one (or more) with you."

5:00 P.M.

Hotel Plaza, Washington, D. C.

"That's my suitcase."

"Oh, yeah."

"Yeah!"

"O.K., O.K., don't get shook!"

5:15 P.M.

"If you don't stop that, you're going to get it."

"Get what?"

"You'll see."

7:00 P.M.

Champagne Room

"They've got a great band here and look at the waitresses! This is real living. What are you doing later?"

"I'm going to the show with someone. And you?"

"Guess I'll take in a night club."

1:00 A.M.

Hotel Plaza

"How was the show?"

"All right. How was the night club?"

"Great! Tom and Judy won a twist contest. They have a trophy to show for their efforts."

5:30 A.M.

"Good-night, Bob."

"Good-night, kids."

"What a card that guy is, huh? Give you odds that he won't make it for breakfast."

6:00 A.M.

"O.K. everybody, Up and at 'em. Breakfast at 6:30. I've got the shower first."

7:00 A.M.

"That's my seat. Or, at least it was my seat."

7:15 A.M.

Arlington Cemetery

"First stop!"

7:30 A.M.

Tomb of the Unknown Soldier

"Try to make him smile, girls. Don't get so close, Jean; he might bite. Let's pick up a few extra bucks at the Bureau of Printing and Engraving. Then we'll go to the F.B.I. Building and give ourselves up. Stay in line so that you can be watched!"

11:00 A.M.

"Race you to the top of the Washington Monument?"

"And back down?"

"Forget it!!!"

"Dayton, what's with the tape recorder? You should have known better than to try to sneak it into the White House; fall out for the pictures on the White House Lawn. Look at the photographer and laugh!"

3:00 P.M.

"After Mount Vernon we can eat; then the rest of the night we're free. I'm gonna to go to Linda's house. How about the rest of you?"

"I guess we'll go to the Central Theater and absorb some culture." The girls are going shopping. See you at 1:00 o'clock, or later."

1:00 P.M.

"Anyone for ping-pong?"
"Where did those crazy wigs come from?"
"Hey, where's my mattress?"
"In the closet!"
"O.K., boys, hit the sack;
Franciscan Monastery first thing in the morning.

October 26, 1962 9:00 A.M.

"Those flowers at the Monastery were beautiful, weren't they? What's Dorothy doing with them in her purse? Hey, I thought I saw my aunt back there!"
"Yeah, we're riding through the zoo."
1:00 P.M.
"The girls finally found their diamond at the Smithsonian Institute, while the 'happy four' posed before a decapitated idol."
8:00 P.M.
"There's nothing I hate more than touring by night! What are we going to see?"
"The Jefferson and Lincoln Memorials, the Congressional Library, the Archives Building and the International Airport."
"Oh, no! No free time!"
"But we can sleep late tomorrow."
"Are you kidding me? I'm staying up all night!
Tomorrow I'll be walking around Washington."

October 22 11:30 A.M.

"Boy, are my feet sore. I didn't realize there was so much of Washington to see. What time do we leave for home?"
"12:15."
"Have you packed yet?"
"No, I'm waiting for the maid to bring fresh towels. I'd hate to take dirty towels home with me."
1:30 P.M.
"So this is the National Cathedral! Look at those windows! How did they ever get them up so high?"
"Well, it's like this . . ."
4:30 P.M.
"Pay attention, folks, for you are now viewing the Civil War at Gettysburg through the medium of the Cyclorama. Watch closely to my left and you will see . . ."
5:30 P.M.
Gettysburg Hotel
"Say, isn't that Eldred at those tables over there?
Purcell looks a bit peaked, doesn't he? I guess he stayed awake the whole trip, too."
"Come to think of it, I'm pretty tired, myself.
What's for dessert?"
11:40 P.M.
"Good old L. M. I thought we'd never see you again. It all happened so quickly. Now it's over, and all we have is a few memories and aching feet. It was well worth it, wouldn't you say?"

Joseph Hauptfleisch - Class Poet.

FATE

The tempest rages, and trees fall down.
Rubble is strewn all over the ground.
Lights are out; streets are bare,
And rain beats down through the swirling air.
It beats down on a weary man
Urged on faster by a natural fan.
It shows no mercy nor restraint
As the man grows weaker and nears a faint.
A lightning bolt shakes the sky
And strikes a tree which is near-by.
The tree falls on that one poor soul
Who happened to be passing down there below.

(Accepted for the Annual Anthology of High School Poetry.)

Patricia Ann Ruth Kidbaca,
Whew, what a name, thought I'd never get finished! Best of luck in the future, not that you'll need it! always keep your friendly smile and keen personali and I'm sure you'll go far. Never forg the fun we had together. Take at easy and Bobby, I like him too. You know.
Love
Sharon
Good luck

Pat,
Good luck to you.
You deserve this beetop
everything, and if I know you you'll do your best to get what you want. Lets do only way to be. I know
you'll be a butterclaes secretary
Thanx it would have.
You'd better be.
